Background:

The Fire Service responds to all emergency calls from the public for assistance, primarily to protect life and save injury to individuals, but also to prevent and restrict damage to property. Many emergency calls are not just in relation to fires, but can be to incidents involving road traffic collisions, incidents involving chemical spillages or toxic emissions and river rescues, etc. In order to maintain this emergency response we need to recruit more Retained Firefighters. Without Retained Firefighters we will not be in a position to respond to emergency calls with speed and proficiency needed to protect the businesses and citizens of County Wexford and its surrounding areas. This could have a serious impact on communities and businesses in your area.

What are Retained Firefighters?

Retained Firefighters are On-Call Firefighters that go about their daily lives like any other member of the community, they are mechanics, electricians, parents, engineers and factory workers. Wexford Fire Service Firefighters consist of both men and women from within your community.

An electronic alerter will notify them when a 999/112 call is received by the regional control centre in Dublin. When they receive the alert, Firefighters then have a maximum of 5 minutes to attend the station and quickly change into their Fire Kit and leave the station in a fire appliance. Normally a minimum crew of 5 highly skilled Firefighters will leave the station ready to tackle whatever emergency awaits them in a speedy and professional manner, saving lives, businesses and communities. When they have successfully completed their Firefighting roles they return to their normal daily routines.

Station	Annual Average Number of Calls
Wexford	366
Gorey	161
Enniscorthy	193
New Ross	166
Bunclody	71

Benefits to you

The new fire fighter will complete the following training:

- First Aid training/First Responder training – Our Firefighters are trained to Emergency First Responder and Cardiac First Responder Advanced levels, including a very high standard in First Aid and CPR. Having a trained Emergency First Responder within your employment can help keep your staff safe and also save training costs within your company as well as meeting your health and safety obligations.
- Fire Extinguisher training – All our Firefighters are trained in the operation and correct use of Fire Extinguishers and hose reels. Our Firefighters are also capable of providing demonstrations to your staff.
- HGV driver training – Many of our Firefighters are highly trained drivers with C Licence and RSA accredited advance driver training. Wexford Fire Service fund the training and associated costs of their Firefighters to achieve these standards. Drivers of this standard may provide significant benefit to your organization and without the cost of providing the training for such skills.
- Manual Handling training – All our Firefighters are trained in manual handling techniques by approved instructors. This training is recognized as required skill in preventing injuries in the workplace.
- Fire Warden training – Firefighters are ideal employees for the role of Fire Warden within your company. They have advanced training in fire behavior, requirements for means of escape and most importantly have the ability to remain calm in emergency situations.
- Health and Safety awareness – Firefighters are provided with extensive health and safety training within the Fire Service and are therefore extremely vigilant in their approach to risk and putting systems in place to reduce any risks in the workplace.

How does it work when a Firefighter is alerted?

Retained Firefighters are rostered to be available as per their local station availability system. Each Firefighter is allocated a pager that they carry with them at all times and must respond to any alerts arriving in the fire station within 5 minutes of the alert.

Firefighters who are at work and receive a call must leave their place of employment and immediately attend the fire station to join the rest of the crew to attend the emergency to which they have been alerted.

Wexford County Council is very aware that employers need reliable and focused staff, and we advise all our Retained Firefighters that you, their main employer, must be consulted with at all times when making arrangements to attend training or any other Fire Service related requirements.

How long does it take to train a Firefighter?

- Initial 3-week recruit induction course
- 2 week Breathing Apparatus (BA) Course
- 1 week Compartment Fire Behavior training
- Emergency First Responder and Cardiac responder training

There are also a number of other courses that Firefighters will complete during their career some of which are listed below.
